Groom principal Ryan Temme was quoted by Law360 in the article, “Drug Costs, State Laws Fuel Push For Fed. Action On PBMs,” where he provided insights on the potential regulatory changes affecting pharmacy benefit managers (“PBMs”) and the broader implications for insurers and group health plans.

“Really, the big question in my mind is, whether it’s going to look exactly like what was included in the [continuing resolution] back in December, or whether there will be additional limitations, or different limitations on the way PBMs and payors contract and the way PBMs administer pharmacy benefits for insurers and group health plans,” said Temme.
